

Many contributors will have a long and eloquent explanations of their viewpoint. I won't. I believe that it is of fundamental importance to have a fair, unbiased and non-restricted freedom of the press. Corporate conglomerate control of media does not allow for this and is therefore wrong. It lets corporations control mass media and most people in America are too stupid or too lazy to get their information elsewhere. Smarter, more educated and more involved citizens and government officials at the FCC need to resist corporate monopolies of information, if only to protect the bill of rights and the stupid lazy people of America who are brainwashed into voting for G.Wank Bush or other idiot republicans. Look, if the FCC and me aren't going to stand up to corporate monopolies (read: control of information) then we may as well just all wipe our butts with the bill of rights. Am I making myself clear here? DON'T ALLOW IT!
